Second Intervention

The appeal to Mr. Sadat was the second instance of Mr. Carter in-tervening dramatically in the roller-coaster course of the talks to keep them moving again toward the goal of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

Last weekend, as Israel was recalling its negotiators, Mr. Carter stepped in and brought the two sides together in a margin that we sides together in a meeting that re-sulted in last Sunday's announce-

Marshal Amin's government is said to be running seriously short of foreign currency at a time when the price of coffee — Uganda's main export — has plummeted from last year's highs. The odds, though, still heavily favor Mr. Trudeau's staying for the election fight. At 59 he looks younger than his age and is said to draw inspiration and vigor from his three sons, aged 6 and under. Giving up, those around him say, is simply not Pierre Trudeau's style.

Egypt, which is sensitive to concern in the Arab world that it not abandon the interests of the 1.1 million Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, has insisted that the treaty contain a reference to the need to resolve the status of these areas.

Arab Ministers In Baghdad for Summit Meeting

BAGHDAD, Oct. 29 (AP) -Arab foreign ministers began to gather here today to prepare for a summit meeting called by Iraq to adopt a united Arab stand against the Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel.

Arab hardliners emphasized that they viewed the meeting on Thurs-day of heads of state as an anti-Camp David meeting. The preparatory meeting of foreign ministers opens Monday.

The joint honor comes at a time when Mr. Sadat needs fresh encouragement. Cairo has warned that a peace treaty is being jeopard-ized by Israel's latest contention that it will expand its settlements in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. There is some hope here that Mr. Begin, in sharing the award, can be persuaded to become more conciliatory.

Mr. Sadat also is likely to face more vitriolic criticism next week from the Arab states, which have cast him as a traitor for dealing with Israel. He has pointedly been left off the invitation list to an Arab summit meeting in Baghdad that will discuss the accords that he and Mr. Begin struck at Camp David. At the least, the Arab summit meeting will point up Mr. Sadat's isolation from the other Arabs, since only the Sudan and Oman have come to his defense

Letdown for Egyptians

The announcement of the award came as something of a letdown for the Egyptians, who considered Mr. Sadat far more deserving than Mr. Begin. Cairo radio and television held off reporting it for an hour and a half, and then quoted foreign Although sources involved in the negotiations described yesterday's news agency accounts without comevents as generally providing a ba-sis for new optimism, there was one discordant note. It stemmed from

Some diplomatic analysts here have suspected that Mr. Sadat's tenacity in the face of nearly a year of frustrations was fueled partly by the hope that he would get the Nobel Prize. His nominations were highlighted in the Egyptian press. As long ago as during the Cairo preparatory conference last December, local merchants erected signs calling for the prize to be awarded to the president. Mr. Sadat has since accepted lesser honors but his eye, like that of the nation, has been on the Nobel Prize.

He issued a stateto Jerusalem last November and of his subsequent perseverance.

Obvious Parallel

Before Friday's announcement, some Cairo-based diplomats had discounted the possibility of a joint award to Mr. Sadat and Mr. Begin. Smith Claims

They cited the obvious parallel of the Nobel Peace Prize that was conferred jointly in 1973 on Henry Kissinger, then U.S. secretary of state, and the North Vietnamese peace negotiator, Le Duc Tho, for working out a cease-fire in Victnam that went sour less than two years

> Mr. Sadat has become the first Arab to be awarded a Nobel Prize, but it is doubtful that this will help his image much in the Arab world because the award mextricably links him with Mr. Begin. Even some Arab moderates are likely to infer that this only confirms that Mr. Sadat has abandoned their ranks to pursue a separate peace

Mr. Sadat's hand is more likely to be strengthened by the Israeli peace movement, which has been pressing Mr. Begin during the last year to be more flexible. The prize will undoubtedly add luster to the peacemaking image that Mr. Sadat has cultivated in the West, particu-larly in the United States.

Admiration at Home

The biggest dividend is that it should make Mr. Sadat politically more secure at home. Egyptians bave basked in the admiration that his startling trip to Israel last November engendered around the world. Yet the reception that the news initially appears to have gotten on the streets of Cairo is con-siderably more low-key than if he had been the sole recipient. Until recently, some Cairo offi-

HUMPHREY-HAWKINS HANDSHAKE — President Carter looks on as Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., shakes hands with Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., after the presidential signing of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, which for the first time stipulates a national goal for unemployment: a rate of 4 percent by 1983 and an inflation rate of 3 percent. Rep. Hawkins co-sponsored the bill with Sen. Humphrey's late husband, Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

Carter's 'Social Compact' Put to Test

By Art Pine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 — Can a European-siyle "social compact" work in today's complex U.S. economy?

That is the crux of the debate over President Carter's wage-price guidelines. Although the plan is more elaborate than any previous program short of controls, Mr. Carter essentially is proposing to strike a bargain among govern-ment, business and labor. The question is whether the trimmings will make this program more likely to work than those tried before. There is little dispute that the guidelines are well-crafted. From a basic 7-percent wage guideline, Mr. Carter has evolved a complex price standard, calling generally for a balf-percentage-point "decelera-tion" from 1976-77 price increases, with additions or further cutbacks depending on costs. And there is enough flexibility — in the right places — to avoid any crunch.

Cleverly, Mr. Carter has offered workers a tax rebate as "insurance" if the plan does not work.

Under the proposal, if inflation outpaces the 7-percent wage limit, workers who agreed to stay within the guidelines would get a tax credit or refund to offset their loss in real income, For business, Mr. Carter promised to hold down federal spending and the cost of government regulations.

Nothing Changed

The dilemma is that, except for providing a new framework, the plan does not change things for the major unions negotiating next year — the factor most essential to the success of the program. From their point of view, they are being asked to base their bargaining on hopes for an improvement next year rather than on what has hapened this year. And analysts say that Mr. respond with the administration's Carter's arithmetic is flawed.

The calculations work this way: next year - not only basic wages. tains that this could help to bold even if they work out.

price increases to between 6 and 6.5 The biggest uncertainty involves percent. And that would put workers one-half to one percentage procurement policies to enforce his

If labor goes along, it will mark a turnabout in union bargaining practices. For one thing, the 6 to 6.5-percent inflation figure is only Mr. Carter's forecast; it is bardly a certainty. And most unions peg their wage demands to "catch np" with the previous year's inflation, not to match that of the current year, which is between 7.5 and 8

Even if Mr. Carter's forecast were to prove accurate, the one-balf to one percentage point "real" wage boost still would leave labor way behind its usual gains. Ever since the Kennedy-Johnson wage-price guidelines of the 1960s, U.S. unions have calculated their wage demands to cover both inflation and a now-outdated 3,2-percent increase in productivity, which Mr. Carter's plan would deny.

Enforcement Questioned

The mathematics are more realistic on the administration's price standards, on which Mr. Carter has provided more flexibility. But analysts question how effectively the price guidelines can be enforced. Mr. Carter said last Tuesday that he planned to use a number of economic sanctions to pressure viola-ideologists have taken extremely seriously the spawning of a "new So-cialist man" out of the country's young revolution. The hatching grounds for this new man are supposed to be the communal villages. Their faith in these collectives stems from their own personal experience with them in "liberated 200es" of oorthern Mozambique during the war for independence.

Flight of the Farmers

However, the government was initially overwhelmed with a com-pletely different concern. The flight of Portuguese farmers left practically all of the country's 4,000-odd commercial farms abandoned and resulted in a disastrons drop in production, especially of export crops.

Thus, most government efforts, resources and time went into getting these abandoned farms going again under state management. This clear general priority was re-flected in the government's ear-marking last year of $25 million — more than a tenth of all export earnings - for the purchase of 1.200 tractors and other equipment for the new state farms.

In addition, the government asked the Scandinavian countries to coocentrate the bulk of their three-year, $50 million agricultural assistance program in helping to staff and advise the farms.

Meanwhile, a half spontaneous and half party-inspired groundswell movement to set up communal villages began. Ucofficial estimates put the number of Mozambicans oow living in 460 of these villages at around 2 millioo - about a fifth of the total population. Most of the villages are still located in northermost Cabo Delgado Province, where there were few Portuguese farms and many wartime "liberated

But in the last year, the govern-ment and party have discovered that these budding communal vil-lages were not getting sufficient fi-nancial and technical assistance to assure their success while at the same time the initial huge invest-ment in machinery for the statefarm sector was not paying off.

As a result, Mr. Machel told the party central committee in August that the "results of the communal villages are still oot showing themselves as they should." He blamed the lack of state planning, coordi-nation and backup services for some of their difficulties. He cited problems of supplying them with goods to encourage production, marketing their produce and locating the villages too far from water points and roads.

These same kinds of problems have resulted in the disenchantment among the peasantry in Tanzania with similar ujaama villages and their poor performance as production centers.

Well aware of this and anxious to avoid the same peasant reaction, Mr. Machel has now ordered that a special economie plan be drawn up for the villages to provide them with the necessary financial and technical support and trained cadres to run them. In addition, the communal villages are to be established by law as the basic economic and administrative units in rural

As for the state-farm sector, the heavy reliance on modern machinery has proven a failure. Many of the new tractors are already broken down with oo spare parts or mechanics to fix them But the climax of the crisis over machine versus man came at the time of the rice harvest in August. On state farms around Chokwe in southern Gaza Province, the government discovered that 109 East German combines it had bought for $31,000 each could not be used because they became bogged down in the wet fields and could not cut the rice, which had grown too tall as a result of an excessive use of fertilizer.

To resolve the crisis, Mr. Machel and several other Cabinet ministers led 50,000 volunteers brought in from nearby villages and the capital to reap the harvest. In this dra-matic Chineso-style manner, the importance of relying on mobilized "people's power" rather than high-ly sophisticated machinery was brought home to the party, government and entire nadon.

5,000 Workers Say Health Dangers Distorted

U.S. Asbestos Firms Charged in Suit

By Henry Weinstein

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29 - A SI billion class action lawsuit oo be-half of more than 5,000 workers at two Southern California shipyards has been filed in Los Angeles Superior Court charging the 15 major U.S. manufacturers of asbestos with a conspiracy to conceal and distort scientific and medical re-ports on the health dangers of

This action, filed Friday, is believed to be the largest in scope of more than 1,000 asbestos health-related lawsuits filed so far.

The suit asks for general and punitive damages and for medical expenses and loss of earnings on behalf of each injured worker. Asbestos is linked to cancer and other lung diseases. Additionally, the suit contends the defendants have been unjustly enriched by the profits of their continued manufacture and sale of as-bestos during the period of their concealment of the facts [1938 to the present]." Thus, the suit con-tends, the companies are indebted to the injured workers in the amount of their profits since that time — about $1 billion.

Lawyers for the plaintiffs said they believed this was the first time that asbestos workers had asked for restitution of profits, a legal reme-dy that generally is confined to an aggrieved busicessman suing another businessman.

Lawyers for several of the defendants said they were unable to comment because they had not been served with a copy of the com-

Ex-CIA Ship Glomar Sail On Ocean Mining Missio

By Robert J. Gore

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Oct. 29 --The Glomar Explorer, used by the CIA in 1974 to raise a sunken Soviet submarine, cast off into the early morning fog yesterday on a $60 million mission designed to revolu-

The vessel departed on a 45-day test cruise to find out if its oceanfloor vacuum can successfully sweep valuable mineral-laden nodules from depths of 14,000 to 18,000 feet.

The Glomar is still shrouded in secrecy. Worried about its experimental mining equipment. Ocean Minerals Co. allowed only a small crowd - relatives of the crew - to TOKYO, Oct. 29 — Thomas Murpby, chairman of General Motors Corp., said yesterday that GM hopes to sell its products directly to China, and that during his recent week-long visit there he offered GM's help in modernizing China's vehicle plants and in building new ones.

"We expressed our interest in cooperating in whatever areas they sought," Mr. Murpby said. He said that be hopes that his China visit "established a basis" for direct GM

Referring to Japan, Mr. Murpby said GM "has a long way to go" to fulfill its desire to sell passenger cars bere. He admitted that the firm "needs to provide products that are desired." Mr. Murpby crincized the Japanese government for moving too slowly to dismantle procedural barriers to imports.

In the China market, General Motors has sold indirectly 2,800 diesel engines now in use, and has been involved indirectly in the sale of Isuzu trucks to China through its 34.2 percent ownership of Isuzu Motor Co. of Japan.

Mr. Murpby said that GM would like to expand its sales of diesel engines. He said that be sees a po-tential market for road-building equipment, machine tools and loco-

The GM chairman said that he told Chinese officials that his firm is prepared to supply China "from whatever source" in its worldwide network of joint ventures and sub-sidiaries whatever the Chinese might be interested in favoring."

"We made clear that we support Isuzu's efforts to expand [its] vol-ume with the People's Republic." Mr. Murphy said.

On the modernization of existing Chinese automotive factories and construction of new ones, Mr. Murpby said that his conversations did not go beyond "merely a concept of what they were seeking." He added, "The opportunity bas been laid out . . . it just remains to be seen what can be developed over the longer term." Asked about GM plans to increase exports to Japan, he said, "If desire were all that were required, we would be there . . . but it's not just a matter of desire. It's a matter of being able to provide the prod-ucts that are desired by the people in this country and of offering them at a compenious price."

He pointed out that Japan probably will import fewer than 50,000 passenger cars this year for a market of almost 3 million sales.

Asked why GM is unable to sell any of its passenger cars for less than 2 million yen (about $11,111) in Japan, Mr. Murpby put part of the blame on Japan's commodity tax. He said the tax is not "a trade barrier in the strict sense," but he noted that it is assessed on not only the value of a passenger car but also on freight and insurance costs involved in shipping it.

He called standards certification in Japan "time-consuming, costly, and needlessly complex."

"We would like to have the same access to this market as the Japaoese manufacturers have to the market in the United States," be

Sinecure Days Interrupted

An embassy to the Vatican used to be a sinecure for a senior ambassador who still had a few years to serve before retirement, or a job for second-string diplomatic talent. An ambassadorship at the Holy See de-manded attendance at a few lengthy pontifical ceremonies in St. Peter's Basilica, occasional conferences with urbane prelates of the papal secretariat of state, and a report to the bome government every

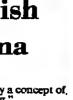

This year, things have radically changed. The sudden death of Pope Paul VI on Aug. 6 and the conclave for the election of a successor obliged many ambassadors at the Holy See and their staffs to postpone scheduled summer vacations.

Diplomats who had just started their long delayed vacations after Pope John Paul I had started his pontificate were recalled and rusbed back to Rome when the "smiling pope" unexpectedly died only 33 days after his elevation.

One deputy chief of mission who has taken only one week's vacation in the second half of September and is entitled to four more weeks for 1978 said dejectedly: "I can't take the time off that's coming to me this year. With the new pope, nobody knows what he is going to do next and what's going to bappen in the Vatican.

The election of the first non-Italian pontiff since Pope Adrian VI, a Dutchman who reigned in 1522-23. is indeed a momentous landmark. The entire fourth quarter of church nistory was dominated by Italian popes. And now — a Pole.

Embassies to the Holy See bave been sending voluminous daily reports to their governments ever since Pope John Paul II became bead of the church. Even powers that maintain no formal diplomatic relations with the Vatican are showing sudden interest. One of them is the Soviet Union. Moscow not only instructed its ambassado to Italy to attend the new pontiff's installation last Sunday to an official capacity, but is understood to

W. German College Sues for New Name

By David Minthorn

OLDENBURG. West Germany (AP) — Oldenburg University is suing the state for the right to rename itself in bonor of German pa-cifist Carl von Ossietzky, the 1935 Nobel Peace Prize laureate who died as a result of Nazi torture. The dispute has developed into a classic conflict pitting conservative residents of the north German city against left-leaning students and faculty of the four-year-old school. The students say that an element of the conflict is the older generation's refusal to "come to terms with the Nazi past."

"Ossietzky symbolizes the socially committed causes the university school spokesman, said.

But townspeople widely regard the campaign to adopt Mr. Ossietzky's name as a power play by Communists in trying to domi-nate the school of 4,700 students. The state of Lower Saxony has sided with the town and has vetoed the name change. Its position is that naming a state institution for any historical figure is "no longer zine recently. "The potential in Eu-rope is very large." "Enriched Flavor" breakthrough leads to unprecedented taste in a low-tar cigarette, MERIT.

A major advance in smoking technology has effectively bridged the gap between low tar and taste.

The breakthrough—a process called "Enriched Flavor" has made possible a remarkable new cigarette, Merit.

A cigarette which is establishing a whole new taste standard for low tar smoking.

"Enriched Flavor."

More than 2000 components of tobacco smoke were analysed one by one. Researchers succeeded in isolating certain natural ingredients which deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

By packing extra quantities of these "key" flavorrich ingredients into a low tar cigarette, Merit was created.

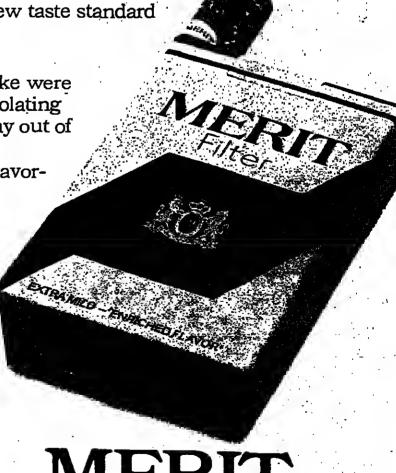

Taste Tests confirm it.

Merit has now been taste-tested among many thousands of smokers in Europe and the U.S.A.

A significant majority of smokers reported Merit delivered as much—or more—flavor as cigarettes bearing up to 60% more tar.

You've been listening to low tar/good taste claims for long enough. Now smoke the cigarette that finally gets them together.

The letter goes on to say that "future incumbents shall be chosen by the university in consultation with the Saudi Minister of Higher Education, such consultation will be within the acceptable academic traditions of the university." Mr. Hubbard said the this phrase assures the university control over chair appointments.

Earlier this month, Mr. Beling said, "I got the chair from the Saudis. It was done by alumni [Sau-di leaders who are USC graduates] with no strings attached."

A little more than two years after he was named to the chair, Mr. Beling was appointed by Mr. Hubbard as director of the USC Middle East Center. The center is funded by the Middle East Center Foundation, thich is also headed by Mr. Beling.

The foundation, at the urging of USC and Saudi leaders, will be financed by U.S. multinational corporations doing billions of dollars worth of business in Saudi Arabia.

A leading figure behind the establishment of the center has been J.R. Fluor, chairman of the USC board of trustees and president and chairman of the board of the Irvine-based Fluor Corp., which is doing millions of dollars worth of construction in Saudi Arabia.

Under the contract that establishes the center, approved by the USC board of trustees earlier this month, the King Faisal chair will become part of the center, with future appointments under the control of a foundation-appointed orapproved governing committee. O Los Angeles Times Communist Party leaders in Peking tell visitors that they plan to follow the example of the 1868

Meiji Restoration and the Japanese economic miracle. Chinese Deputy Premier Teng Hisiao-ping arrived in Japan with the aanounced intention to "learn from . . . the great, industrious, heroic and wise Japanese people." A Cabinet-level delegation is following him to explore "the secrets of the high-growth Japanese according." anese economy."

Although there is much in garish, capitalistic Tokyo that the Chinese do not want to copy, they have signaled that of all the world's major industrial powers, Japan is now the favorite model for China's 900 million people. Since the two countries normalized relations in 1972, about 120,000 Japanese have visited China while perhaps 12,000 Chinese have seen Japan, a depth of contact that China probably now has with no other country.

In Japan, the Chinese find lessons in efficiency and enterprise not so tainted by the rugged individualism they find so distasteful in the West Japan of so distasteful in the West. Japan suggests a way to build modern factories without losing too much of traditional arts, a way to borrow from the West without being controlled by it. Japan offers ecocomic vitality without im-mense income differences or social schisms. It insists on a respect for elderly leaders that sits well with China's current gerontocracy.

Study in Adaptation

"The Chinese see us Japanese, like themselves, as not being ex-plorers in modern technology," said a Japanese diplomat. "They are interested in studying how we adapted what we found in the West so quickly." It is to both the Japanese and

Chinese a most interesting turnabout, for if the latest anthropolog-ical theories are to be believed, the Japanese of today are nothing more than the offspring of Chinese colonists who arrived on the islands just 200 years before Christ. Those comparatively recent colonists sup-planted an ancient Japanese race that survives now as the primitive Ainu tribe. To this day, the Japanese use the Chinese written language and have a cultural tradition extensively borrowed from their huge neighbor to the west. But when both countries were hit by the onslaught of superior Euro-pean technology in the 18th and 19th centuries, the Japanese found pean technology in the 18th and 19th centuries, the Japanese found a way to modernize quickly under the enlightened leadership of the Meiji emperor. At the same time, the Chinese Empire resisted the modernizers and the ancient nation crumbled into factionalism and revolution. China reunified under a Communist government in 1949, but has been handicapped by political disputes and has not even approached, so far, the progress the Japanese have made in rebuilding since World War II. When a new government took over in China in 1976 after the death of Mao Tsetung, analysts wondered how much it would change Mao's policy of economic self-reliance and what foreign examples it might follow.

The most prophetic answer came in an unusually detailed wall poster that appeared on a busy street in Canton Jan. 23, 1977. With language and authority that seemed to indicate inspiration from very high in the Communist Party, the poster pronounced open envy of the Japa-

Junta Found Guilty in Newsman Death

By David Vidal

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 29 (NYT) - In a decision of enormous political significance, a feder-al judge in Sao Paulo has ruled that the Brazilian military government was responsible for the death three years ago of Vladimir Herzog, a journalist widely believed to bave been tortured to death while in the custody of the army.

The ruling, likely to emerge as a landmark in the current efforts to restore the rule of law to Brazil. tolk cast strong doubt on the army ver-is sion of suicide and thus indirectly wl supported evidence that Mr. Herzog was tortured.

This is the first known incidence in which the Brazilian judiciary has condemned the government in a case involving allegations of torture, and it promises to become a major test of the government's promises for more respect for the independence of judges.

The decision, banded down Friday by Justice Marcio Jose de Morais of the seventh circuit, grew out of a suit brought against the government by Mr. Herzog's widow and children. It not only charged the government with responsibility, but ordered the government to investigate other charges of torture of political pris-oners in the security division of the Second Army beadquarters in Sao

1975 Death

The federal appeals court must confirm the sentence, which was issued two days after the third anniversary of Mr. Herzog's death. President Ernesto Geisel, who assumed office in 1974 with wide promises to liberalize the now 14year-old military regime, sacked Gen, Eduardo d'Avila Mello, the Second Army commander, as the result of the public outery following Mr. Herzog's death in 1975.

That step represented a major move by the Geisel administration toward gaining strict control over the quasi-independent security organs, whose constant violations

In recent months, some promises for liberalization have been fulfilled, with the lifting of censorship on all newspapers, the approval of a bill to abolish the regime's arbi-trary powers and to guarantee the independence of the judiciary, as well as the tacit approval of unusu-ally tough denunciations made by government opponents. But at the same time, the government has proposed to keep a law on national security which retains the essence of some of the powers abolished in other laws to become effective in January. Also, it bas chosen Gen. Joao Baptista Figueiredo, a former chief of national intelligence, whose job gave him intimate knowledge of all the operations of the security apparatus, as the next president.

8 U.S. Nazis Jailed For Chicago Beating

CHICAGO. Oct. 29 (AP) — Eight American Nazis have been sentenced to 18 months of periodic imprisonment in the Cook County Jail for beating a man nutside an Israeli bond dinner here.

Circuit Judge Warren Wolfson convicted the men last month on a charge of aggravated battery. On Friday, he ordered the eight to spend week nights and weekends of the first year in jail and weekends only during the last six months of the sentence. The eight were acquitted of an attempted murder charge. They are members of the National Socialist Party of America.

"We're talking about 33 or at most '40.5 miles of fence along the entire border," he said.

The firming of the controversy was nevertheless unfortunate since it coincided with the visit here of two senior U.S. officials — David Newsom, under secretary of state for political affairs, and David Aaron, deputy adviser for national se-curity affairs — who are participating in a study of ways of improving U.S. relations with Mexico.

Burden on a Nobel Laureate

We congratulate Anwar Sadat, who started it all, and Menachem Begin, who responded in kind, for winning the Nobel Peace Prize. Egyptians may feel Mr. Sadat deserved to win it alone, but splitting it emphasizes that peace involves an interaction and not an initiative alone. Wisely, the Nobel Committee cautioned that the prize was given not just to honor what has been done so far but also to spur to completion the process begun in Jerusalem a year ago. Jimmy Carter, we note, got an honorable mention. Americans may be forgiven for thinking that the Egyptian and Israeli leaders would not be Nobel laureates today if President Carter had not drawn their best from them at Camp David.

Everybody notices that the Nobels happened to be announced on a day when a nasty squabble was going on. It will pass.

Since Camp David, it seems to us, President Sadat has acted in a manner befitting a recipient of a Nobel Peace Prize. He has carried his own public, swallowed great abuse from other Arab states, and conducted the follow-up peace talks in Washington with discretion and dispatch and without pushing an undue share of his own political burden upon his partner, Prime Minister Begin. His performance has been in the spirit of Camp David.

As for Menachem Begin, he must cope with heavy political opposition — a task demanding courage on his part and understanding by others. We wonder, though, whether some of us sometimes show a bit too much understanding. The other day Mr. Begin made a gratuitous assertion of Israel's "right" to expand settlements in the West Bank. Mr. Begin claimed a requirement to calm his unreconstructed right - a requirement that must be served, but not exaggerated. He also claimed to be angered by some statements made — out of school, he suggested — to Jordan and West Bank Arabs by an assistant secretary of state. He said this although he knows the statements follow the language used by Jimmy Carter himself to King Hussein.

Mr. Begin knows further that an Arab summit is about to be held and that Mr. Sadat, who would be criticized there harshly anyway, will be undercut even more by an Israeli gesture that seems to confirm the darkest suspicions about Israel's West Bank designs. Even among some Americans, it has to be said. Mr. Begin has raised the question of wbether his real policy is not to pocket the Sinai and then to take steps that will render it impossible to tie up the West Bank half of the Camp David package.

We do not share those suspicions. We believe that the forces loosed by Camp David, acting through the procedures laid out there, are virtually sure to produce a West Bank agreement down the road. But history will not unfold by itself. Mr. Begin has an obligation to accept in spirit as well as letter the commitment to a comprehensive settlement made at Camp David. And he must demonstrate his acceptance - most of all to his fellow Nobel laureate.

Mr. Warnke Steps Down

In stepping down as head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and as chief strategic-arms negotiator, Paul Warnke leaves both enterprises in better condition than they were in when he came aboard. ACDA has won the clear voice in helping set the broad arms-control policy that those who set up the agency intended and that the public interest requires. The SALT talks are reported to be on the verge of producing an agreement. These are substantial achievements in a field where achievements of any sort are hard to come by.

As part of the personal harassment to which he has been regularly subjected, it is being said of Mr. Warnke's departure that he was pushed - that President Carter, in effect, has repudiated him. As it happens, that is false. He is leaving at a moment when; given the uncertain political climate surrounding SALT, it may help the administration to have a less controversial SALT negotiator. But he is leaving by prearrangement for reasons of his own. Far from repudiating him, the president is paying him the ultimate tribute of moving ahead to complete and then present the very treaty he negotiated. Often hysterically, his critics have tried to paint the cool Mr. Warnke — again, falsely - as some sort of soft unilateral disarmer. They have had neither the grace to concede he was conducting not his own policy but the administration's, nor the stomach to attack President Carter head-on.

As SALT negotiator Mr. Warnke is being succeeded by his deputy, Ralph Earle Jr., an experienced hand without either Mr. Warnke's high political profile or his high prestige. As head of ACDA the president has nominated retired Lt. Gen. George M. Seignious Jr., who used to be, among other things, the Pentagon's chief arms salesman. Now he is to head an agency that was given separate life precisely to institutionalize a nonmilitary approach to national security. We are sure that, for one, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a foe of Mr. Warnke's, will want to assure himself in the confirmation hearings that the general is the right man for the job.

Britain and Zambia

The government's decision to fly out British air defense equipment to Zambia, in the wake of the recent Rhodesian airborne attacks against ZAPU guerrilla camps there, bears all the ballmarks of a balf-baked, window-dressing operation. As such, it is likely to prove inadequate yet at the same time dangerous. There are serious political implications also, in that the equipment, though nominally for the defense of Zambia, is in fact intended for the defense of Mr. Nkomo's forces which are attacking Rhodesia, a country which the government still regards as a colony under the crown, albeit a rebel one. So Britain will be aiding forces fighting against what is still nominally British territo-

This is a curiously roundabout way of belping to put down the Rhodesia rebellion by force, something which the Wilson government firmly and publicly foreswore. . .

These considerations apart, the operation is likely to prove inadequate because there are simply no Zambians capable of operating or maintaining the equipment being sent. This has been amply shown by the history of the British Rapier anti-aircraft missiles which Zambia already has. They are unusable for lack of maintenance. . .

The operation is dangerous . . . because it will involve Britain, for the first time, in an open-ended commitment of a military nature, in the Rhodesian fighting. Its political purpose, as Mr. Callaghan no doubt would see it . . . is to preempt pressure on Dr. Kaunda from his fellow African presi-. dents and from Mr. Nkomo, whose forces are armed by Russia, to call in Cuban or East German advisers. Only events will show if it is enough for that. Window-dressing is not much good if someone throws a brick through the window.

Reality for Ian Smith

[Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian] Smith's tactical successes - diplomatic in the United States, military in Zambia - serve to protract the agony for black and white Rhodesians. The climate and conditions of the Rhodesian plateau are conducive to white euphoria. That state of mind, full of hopeful illusions, produced the Unilateral Declaration of Independence, aborted all attempts at peacefully ending it, and subsequently shaped an internal settlement . . . in which the black participants are seen to lack all the realities of power, while at the same time the basis of white power slowly but inexorably crumbles. The white population steadily falls. Unfortunately, as those who leave are the more realistic, and those who remain the more prone to euphoria, the last days of UDI are hardly likely to be more rational than the

Until the very end, that is, when all euphoria bas to fade. Mr. Smith will twist and turn as long as be can . . . but the moment has to come when Mr. Smith or his successor will be forced to act on what Mr. Smith has probably already seen: that both UDI and the internal settlement . . . have failed; that it is neither possible for white Rhodesians to go on ruling, directly or indirectly, nor for them to nominate their black successors.

Significant Recovery

Now, over the past five years, there has been significant economic recovery in the Third World — with considerable belp from international organizations and individual nations.

A small group of advanced developing countries — India, Korea, Brazil, and others — is getting much stronger, and better able to help themselves and each other. None of this changes the fact that there still exists a horribly deprived group of the poorest of poor countries. Or that here in India, balf of 630 million people barely survive below a desperately

Nobel Prize: The Panel's Timing Was Brilliant all

By James Reston

WASHINGTON — The Nobel
Peace Prize was given to a President Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Begin of Israel precisely on the day when they were fussing with one another over the terms of peace in the Middle East. But maybe the Nobel Committee had a good new idea.

mittee had a good new idea.

Namely, that this honorable award should be made to people, not only for what they had done for peace in the past, but what they might do for it in the future. The timing of the award was not awk, ward but brilliant. For it reminded both Sadar and Besin that the both Sadat and Begin that they were engaged together in a historic moment of reconciliation that should not be lost in disputes over less important details.

What Explanation?

How, for example, would then How, for example, would they deal with the invitation to go to Oslo on Dec. 10 to receive the Nobel Peace Prize? Could they explain to the world, or even to their own people, that, after 30 years of contention and war, they could not set their major differences because they could not agree about a few lightly settlements on the West Israeli settlements on the Wes-Bank of the Jordan River?

President Carter and Secretary of State Vance have been pleading with Sadat and Begin to concentrate on the possibilities of pears rather than on the difficulties of the moment, and to look to the end o the century. But the Nobel Com mittee has brought the question down to hard tacks for both Sada and Begin, and is forcing them to decide whether they will concen trate on the larger bistoric ques-tions of peace in the Middle East with all the risks involved, o conentrate on the politics of the Koesset in Jerusalem and oo the divided Arab nations.

It may be ironic that these two old battlers. Sadat and Begin, who have been involved most of theilives in violence, conflict, terro-and war, should be proclaimed in their declining years by the Nobe Committee as the apostles of peace.

And yet, there is a certain sym metry and logic to this award. After all, Alfred Bernhard Nobel was I Swedish chemist (1833-1896) which invented dynamite and other nui sances. He was educated in St. Pet" ersburg, now Leningrad, and like Robert Oppenheimer and other inventors of the alom bomh, began as he grew older, to doubt the wis dom of blowing up the world. So he used the considerable financial preceeds of his explosives to rewanthe people who were working for peace and for the development c the human family in literature chemistry, physics, physiology medicine and economics. Hi prizes, in short, were a personal compensation for his inventions.

The West's Stake in Mobutu's Future

By David Lamb

INSHASA, Zaire - Several years ago President Joseph Desire Mobotu dropped his Catholic name and assumed the African name of Mobutu Sese Seko Kuku Ngbendu Waza Banga.

The new name, adopted as part of an "authenticity" campaign to help Zaire rediscover its African past, translates as "the all-powerful warrior who, because of his endurance and inflexible will to win, will go from conquest to conquest, leaving fire in his wake."

For both Mobutu and Zaire, those were heady days. The country was living high on copper prices three times higher than those today, and Mobutu, a leopard-skin cap perched jauntily on his bead, had caught the fancy of Africa with his authenticity campaign — which included the cancellation of Christmas and his unexpected national-ization of the Belgian-cootrolled

But to single out Mobutu for contempt, as Africa has done, smacks of bypocrisy. His regime is far less ruthless than that in Uganda His fortune is not much his service. da. His fortune is not much bigger or his spending much more extravagant than that of the emperor in the next-door Central African Empire. His survival is no more dependent on foreign military assistance than that of the Angolan president. His economy is no more mismanaged than that of Zambia.

Different Rules

Africa, however, has set special standards for Mobutu. Why? Perhaps only because be does not play the game by African rules. He flaunts his wealth rather than denying its existence. He trades openly with South Africa rather than using the back door. He elevates himself to a saintly status in the Zairian hierarchy, with no pretense of subtlety or humility. He does not claim that his people's welfare comes before his own. He does not even pretend to believe that Africa is capable of solving Africa's prob-

The guess here is that it will be surprising if Begin and Sadat do not follow Alfred Berhard Nobel's example. Both of them have very hard political problems and area in

But they have some things in common, imponderable things that may be more important in the end than their differences over the power of land, money, and weapons. They agree on the financial bur-den of military weapons; on the ag-ony of poverty in Egypt and taxa-tion in Israel; on the menace of the power and philosophy of the Soviet Union; and finally, oo the dangers of war if they cannot agree on some reasonable compromise.

Critical Point

That the Nobel Committee awarded its peace prize to these two men, at this critical point in the Middle East negotiations, when they are being trailed and hauled toward conflict by narrow political considerations, was probably a very important decision.

At least, there is a better chance now that Sadat and Begin will be able to agree on some kind of compromise by Nov. 18 — the anniversary of Sadat's mission to the Knesset in Jerusalem — and go on together to receive their Nobel Peace Prize in Oslo on Dec. 10. This could be a celebration of reconciliation as worthy and practical as any since the Nobel family turned from explosives to peace at the beginning of this century.

This is no ordinary constitutiooal amendment. The desperateness of the struggle to ratify it - or defeat it — testifies to the profound impact it could have on U.S. society. And the Senate's vote was no ordinary vote. It represents a unique victory in the war on discrimination. But the newsplay this historic event received suggests an attempt to minimize what some men might fear as an attack on male supremacy.

problems, that is, the ostensible purpose of the Camp David talks.
This omission is not accidental and is due, it seems to me, oot to absent-mindedness, but to the simple reason that the talks never got close to finding a solution to such vital issues of the Middle East as withdrawal of fsraeli troops from all occupied Arab territories or es-sablishment of a national Palestinian state. The conduct of all three parties to the Camp David talks following their cooclusion confirmed once again that even at the beginning they had no intention of solving these problems in one way or another. Hasty steps to conclude a separate treaty between Israel and Egypt under pressure from Washington, even in the interpretation of the Western press, do not remove the main causes of the Middle East crisis, but only eliminate some of the external symptoms, forcing the disease inside. This approach, for all its outward effect and immediate benefits for the political prestige of the parties to the talks, may be fraught with a new aggravation of the illness and further outbursts of violence in that much-suffering region. Syndicated Bank Loans

PARIS, Oct. 29 (IHT) --- Commercial hankers breathed a sigh of relief at the news last week that Electricite de France had abandoned its attempt to drive spreads on syndicated loans below the one-half percent level. But there was no great rejoicing.

The EDF operation — $600 million for 10 years — merely confirmed that there is a floor below which the majority of international banks are not willing to lend. But at the same time, other, less prime, borrowers continue to push down their cost of borrowing to get nearer the flour

The latest example of this is the Soviet Union's Foreign Trade Bank, which is negotiating to tap the market for $250 million. The 10-year loan would carry a spread of % percent over the London interhank offered rate (Lihor). This would be the lowest spread for such a long maturity accorded an East-bloc borrower in the current cycle of declining margins. The previous 10-year loan, for Comecon's International Investment Bank, carried a spread of % for 30 months and % over Libor thereafter.

The new operation is being treated as a "private placement." Well-informed sources say that five banks will be invited to put up $20 million and 10 other banks will be asked to take up $15 million each. The return to the hanks will be increased by th addition of a quarter-point front-end fee. However, participating hanks will not be able to sell-down, or syndicate, portions of their subscription to others.

Market Segregation

The apparent strategy is aimed at segregating the market, placing Russian debt with specific institutions and thus keeping open the possibility of tapping the lending power of other banks at a later date. Meanwhile, bankers report that the Russians continue to tap the market fairly regularly through what are called "sole lender loans" - arranging medium-term inter-hank deposits with individual institutions.

A number of refinancings are currently being negotiated --- including the first for a Brazilian borrower. As that nation's demand for credit is quite huge, the international banks bave been courted - with borrowers neither fighting to achieve the lowest possible spreads nor trying to renegotiate terms on outstanding loans. However, Electrobras, which last year arranged a $250-million, seven-year loan at spreads ranging from 1% to 2% over Libor, wants to divide this into 10- and 12-year portions carrying 1 5/16 and 1 7/16 over Libor.

The borrower notes that in present market conditions, a new loan could easily be arranged at 11/4 for 10 years and 11/4 for 12 years. (Nuclearbras. (Continued on Page 13, Col. 2)

CHICAGO, Oct. 29 (AP-DJ) -Futures traders, anticipating a "mammoth influx of foreign buying" of U.S. soybeans and grains because of the dollar's declining value, sent soybean prices sharply higher last week.

In a week of renewed inflationary fears sparked by skepticism about the Carter administration's new anti-inflation measures and the dollar's repeated beatings on world currency markets, soybean prices were among those of 10 major commodities on six U.S. futures exchanges that exceeded previous life-of-contract highs.

Bursting through last week's season highs hy more than 20 cents for all months' contracts, soybeans, the most volatile in price of the farm commodines, gained from 30 to 47% cents a bushel to close at $7.17% for November delivery.

Wheat also exceeded life-of-contract highs in four of the six months traded, with gains of 12½ to 26¼ cens a bushel, to close at $3.64% for December delivery.

Free Booklet Explains Characteristics and Investment Advantages of Eurobonds.

Merrill Lynch International has just published a new, comprehensive booklet, "Basics About Eurobonds." It explores and explains the key concepts of the Eurobond market. And covers both their distinctive tax features and the wide choice of currencies available to investors.

In short, the booklet answers those questions most frequently asked by investors. It clearly explains the new terminology that has grown up around the Eurobond market-carefully relating the new terms to those with which investors are already familiar in the markets of their own countries. The booklet is designed to assist investors who have decided to take a broader, more international view-as well as current Eurobond investor who wish to increase their knowledge about this important, fast-growing field without charge or obligation.

We believe you will find the booklet a valuable source of reference, as it contains a wealth of information which is difficult to find elsewhere.

It covers such subjects as: Eurodollar rates • International bonds • Eurobonds · Primary and secondary markets · Issuing terms · Yield to . maturity . Sinking funds . Call features . Quality of Eurobond issues . The distinctive advantages and risks of investing in Eurobonds. And more. For your free copy of this comprehensive booklet, just mail the coupon below.

IC Industries third quarter net income reached a record $19.8 million, up from $19.2 million in 1977. In the same period sales and revenues were a record $687 million. nearly 46 percent above the same period

These record results were achieved even though there were major non-recurring costs during this unusual period. Railroad strike insurance payments, a railroad work stoppage, substantial transitional adjustments and costs associated with the purchase of Pet incorporated and foreign currency translation losses impacted IC Industries in the third quarter.

Consumer Products record third quarter sales top $300 million.

The IC Consumer Products Group produced a record $300 million in third quarter sales, bringing the year-to-date pre-tax income to $47.9 million, up 27 percent over third guarter last year.

Midas-International continued its record-setting pace by posting nine month sales of $245 million, up 24.5 percent over the first nine months of 1977, Our Midas Muffler Shops' expansion into the foreign car market was boosted at the beginning of October when we extended the famous Midas lifetime guarantee to include . the imports.

The IC Industries soft drink operations -Pensi-Cola General Bottlers. Dad's Root Beer and Bubble Up - had a record $170 million in sales for the first nine months, 12.4 percent ahead of the same period last year.

Included in the consolidated total lor IC Industries were Per sales of $153 million. approximately 62 percent of Pet's total sales for the third quarter.

Commercial Products has year-to-date pre-tax income over $50 million.

Our Commercial Products Group, composed of divisions of the Abex Corporation. experienced a strong third quarter. It brought first nine months sales to $544 million with a 9.6 percent increase in pre-tax income to $50.7 million.

Abex will open a new railroad wheel mounting plant in Corsicana. Texas November 1. to supply complete wheelsets to the railroad industry.

In addition, the Jetway division of Abex has received orders for 96 of the 127 zircraft loading bridges at Midfield Atlanta Airport.

Third quarter accomplishments significant to I C Industries long range objectives.

IC Industries is now positioned even more solidly in the consumer products market. In the third quarter we acquired Pet Incorporated. Pet has a wide range of nationally distributed brands of food and food-related products. With approximately $1 billion in annual sales, it is a significant step in IC Industries objective to become primarily a diversified consumer and commercial products company.

Within the same objective, delinitive agreements were signed to sell five operating companies in the IC Financial Services Group.

Also, in the third quarter, IC Industries agreed to cooperate in the Southern Railway's study on the advisability and feasibility of the Southern acquiring the ICG Railroad. These studies are now in progress and cominging satisfactority.

The new IC Industries that is emerging primarily a consumer and commercial products company, will be operating from a substantially stronger base. IC Industries will be stronger both financially and in the various markets it serves worldwide.

Ten years ago IC Industries was a $300 million regional railroad. Today, we're a $3 billion diversified international corporation. And the activities of the last quarter are setting the stage for further substantial improvement in the consolidated financial characteristics of the new IC Industries.

If you'd like to know more about the new IC Industries, write: IC Industries, Inc., European Office, 55, chemin Moise Duboule, CH-1209 Geneva, Switzerland,

420 Million Metric Tons

A Record Wheat Harvest Predicted by World Panel

By Leonard Kirschen

dicts a possible record wheat crop for the world this year, perhaps reaching 420 million metric tons, 10 million tons above the estimate made by the council on Sept. 11.

The oew estimate comes as wheat-growing and wheat-import-ing countries are gearing up for a last round of negotiations to secure a new international wheat agree-

The talks will take place in Geneva under the auspices of the UN Conference for Trade and Development, starting Nov. 6. A draft treaty containing possible alternatives has been prepared by the IWC sec-retariat and has been circulated to

In a tentative preliminary fore-cast of the 1978-79 world soybean crop, the IWC listed a record high of 83 million metric tons, 6 million over last season's record.

Concerning wheat, the IWC was cautious in reporting its latest glob-al estimate, noting that there could be downward revisions after final figures are obtained from the Soviet Union. It also said that its asse ment of crops in the southern hemisphere, Australia and Argentina particularly, was based on preliminary estimates But if the IWC forecast is accurate, then the world surplus of wheat in importing and exporting countries would rise to 88 million metric tons at the end of the 1978-79 crop year. That figure does not include final results from China and the Soviet Union.

Soviet wheat production is esti-mated to reach 110 million metric tons this year, 5 million tons more than was predicted in September and notably higher than last year's crop of 92 million tons.

The Soviet Union has consistently been one of the main buyers of coup.

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP) - The U.S. and Canadian wheat. A large International Wheat Council pre- harvest does not necessarily mean that the Russians will cease buying because their own requirements, and those of their satellite nations, continue to grow as living standards improve.

But it does mean that world trade in wheat will shrink. The IWC said that it will be down to 69 million metric tons in the 1978-79 crop year, from 72.1 million in the 1977-78 seasoo.

World trade in coarse grains principally bariey, corn, sorghum and oats — is expected to rise in 1978-79 to 85.2 million metric tons. from 83.1 million in the 1977-78 crop year.

The IWC added that Brazil may purchase about 2 million metric ions of corn because of its crop fail-ure due to a prolonged drought earlier this year. Because of the better outlook for crops, the Soviet Union and Western Europe will buy less from coarse grain markets in the 1978-79 crop year, But Japan, Eastern Europe and China are expected to make up the difference.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29 (AP) - An Algerian diplomat said yesterday that Algerian President Houari Boumedienoe is "feeling better" and has met with his foreign minister here. It was the first public acknowledgement that Mr. Boumedienne had been ill and that he was still in the Soviet Union following a brief official conference in Moscow earlier this month, Mr. Boumedienne's whereabouts have been surrounded by mystery following reports that he was seriously ill or had been injured in an attempted

WELL, LOOK DOWN THE COLUMN THAT SAYS 'BROKEN PACKAGES'. UH-HUH,...TOO HIGH? TELL YOU WHAT, SINCE IT'S A QUANTITY ORDER, I'M WILLING TO SPLIT THE DIFFERENCE OVER THE PRICE ORIGINALLY QUOTED. YES ?... OKAY YOU'LL GET ALL THE COLORS. EXCEPT THE BLUE, WELL, WHEN I TALKED TO YOUR MR. PETRIE HE SAID IT WAS ALL RIGHT, OH YES, I TALKED TO HIM. SAID YOU HAVE ENOUGH IN STOCK. ENOUGH TO HOLD YOU FOR AWHILE, SAID TO TELL YOU IF YOU HAD ANY DOUBTS, UH-HUH. OH, OF COURSE, YOU'RE IN A BIND? WE'LL GET THAT ORDER ON A PLANE TONIGHT. RIGHT. WE HAVE THANK YOU, WORK

Do you need details...a decision right now...give-and-take? Then it's the telephone to the U.S.A.

You won't wait hours-or even overnight-for an answer as you must with other means of communications. Right on the spot you can explore, persuade, explain—and close the sale. The cost isn't much when you consider the results.

LEON TROTSKY By Irving Howe. (Modern Masters series). Viking. 214 pp. Reviewed by Webster Schott

TO FIND a proper American parallel may be impossible. Thomas Jefferson is the closest in U.S. history: radical intellectual historian, connoisseur of the arts, revolutionary statesman. But the distance between a Jefferson and a Trotsky may as well be light years as centuries. Trotsky possessed that uniqueness of personality, mind and will that we associate with extreme states - genius or madness, depending on setting or effect. Leon Trotsky, with Viadimir Lenia, shook the world.

Irving Howe has written this brief nonbiography, this "political essay with a narrative foundation" essay with a narrative foundation because even now, nearly 40 years after his murder by a NKVD agent in Mexico City, Trotsky "remains a figure of heroic magnitude." More importantly, I think, as our most literary socialist and as a former Trotsky disciple, Howe wants to examine what went wrong with the Russian Revolution and how a man of Trotsky's dimension contributed of Trotsky's dimension contributed to its monstrous product.

to its monstrous product, Everything about Trotsky was dissent, including his name. Born Lev Davidovich Bronstein of weilto-do Jewish farmers near Odessa, he became, chiefly on principle, a professional revolutionary at the age of 18. He took the name of a Siberian jailer in the fall of 1902 when he made one of his several when he hade the talk several escapes from prison. He began as a Menshevik, debating alternatives with Lenin and Julius Martov in London. He became a Bolshevik because his radical ideas about the dictatorship of the proletariat and permanent revolution were unacceptable to Mensheviks, but fitted Lenin's strategy to gain power as the Russian Revolution of 1917 rolled into the civil war years of the 1920s. For e while Trotsky was much of the brains, most of the voice, and all of the arms of the revolution. His oratory held crowds spellbound. His party nickname was "The Pen," and Trotsky's revolu-tionary writings flashed with gleaming language and a virtuosity for ideological argument. The foundation ideas of the Soviet Union were as much Trotsky's as Lenin's Trotsky's personal magnetism and fearlessness, which continued until his death, propelled him forward regardless of circumstance. After the 1905 naval revolt in St. Petersburg had led to the first workers' soviet in Russia, Trotsky went there to help and was elected chairman. During his years in exile before the revolution, he arrived in New York and immediately became one of Manhattan's most conspicuous radical journalists.

After the 1917 revolution Trot-sky provided the ideological base for Lenin's exclusion of other parties from the ruling center occupied by the Bolsheviks, a condition Trotsky was to lament the rest of his life. From the dispirited tem-

NEW YORK (NYT) - Currently, the orthodox view is not, wherever there is a choice, that active counterplay should be preferred to passive dissent. While no one can quarrel with this in general, it must be recognized that there are exceptions, positions where pure dissent

The trouble with passive defense is that it allows the opponent to play a cat- and-mouse game, shifting from one threat to another, thus demanding that the opponent re-main doggedly diligent over a long period of moves. Very few players now trust themselves to come through such a difficult test with-

Nevertheless, in the seventh game of the recently completed Women's World Chess Champion-ship in Pitsunda, U.S.S.R., the new-champion, 17-year-old Maya Chr-burdanidze, made a dubious deci-sion in undertaking active counter-play when pure defense would have proven more reliable in cherking black's initiative. The result was a loss that gave the beleaguered ex-champion, Nona Gaprindashvili, also of the Soviet Union, new hope. Umpires Drop Labor Dispute With Baseball

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29 (AP) - Major league baseball umpires have withdrawn charges of uofair labor practices against team owna ooe-day walkout in August.

The umpires' association struck because the numers would not renegouate the umpires' contract. The walkout was ended by a federal judge's back-to-work order.

The regional director for the National Labor Reladoos Board, Peter Hirsch, said that his agency would have dismissed the complaint because it found the existing cootract between the umpires and the leagues was valid.

The 52 umpires had sought through the NLRB, to compel the leagues in reopen negotations on such issues as expense accounts salaries, job security and vacations. But Hirsch said the issues were addressed adequately in the present contract. Before the NLRB could issue a formal ruling however, it received a letter from the umpires asking that the case be dropped.

Richie Phillips, the umpires' attorney, said the complaint was withdrawn because "now that the seasoo is over the matter is kind of

Russians Sweep Gymnastic Titles

STRASBOURG, France, Oct. 29 (AP) — The Soviet Union resoundingly asserted its domination of gymnastics by taking 17 of the 38 medals as the world championships ended bere today.

The Soviet blitz comprised the women's team gold, the men's team silver, the men's combined gold and bronze, all three women's combined medals and 10 individual apparatus medals.

But beyond the Soviet monopoly, the world championships marked the emergence of the United States into international gymnastics and saw the decline of the heroine of the Montreal Olympics, Nadia Comaneci of The United States' new promise showed first in the team events, with the men finishing fourth and the women fifth. Then today Kurt Thomas of the United States executed a near-flawless mutine to take the gold medal in the floor exercises. Thomas' gold medal was the first for the United States in gymnastics sioce the 1932 Olympic Games in Los Angeles. Later in the day, the United States won its second, and its first in women's competition, when

Marcia Frederick triumphed to the uneven bars. Thomas, 22, earned 19,650 of a possible 20 points to outdistance Shi-geru Kasamatsu of Japan, who was second with 19.575 points. Alexaoder Ditiatin of the Soviet Union took the bronze medal with 19,400 points. Entering the individual apparatus competition today with a 9.75 aggregate. Thomas recorded the highest score of the day with 9.90 points. In other events. Zoltan Magyar of Hungary took the gold medal in the pommel horse event, with Eberhard Gienger of West Germany second and Stioan Delichey of Bulgaria third. Magyar scored a 9.90, which together with his previous aggregate of 9.90 made him unbeatable with a intal of 19.800. Gienger scored 19.425 and Deltchev 19,400.

Second Medal of Day

Nikolai Andrianov of the Soviet Union won the gold medal in the rings event with a total of 19.700. Second was another Russian, Ditiatin, with 19.675, for his second medal of the day. He took the bronze in the floor

Danut Green of Romania took the bronze medal with 19.650. Junichi Shimizu of Japan won the gold in the vault, with Andrianov

Shimuzu, who did not even qualify omong the top 36 gymnasts in Friday's men's combined exercises, scored an excellent 9.90 for a total of 19.600. Andrianov scored 19.575 and Bathel 19.550.

Eizo Kenmotsu of Japan, the silver medalist in the combined, took the gold in the parallel bars event, with 19,600, and Andrianov and Hiroji Kajiyama of Japan tied for second with 19,575. Kasamutsu of Japan took a gold medal io the high har event, the last men's event, to add to his silver io the floor exercises. The silver in the high har went to Gienger of West Germany, who also scored a silver on Tied for third were Deltchev of Bulgaria, who woo a bronze in the pommel horse event, and Gennadi Krysio of the Soviet Unioo, The scores were 19.675, 19.650 and 19.600.

In the women's iodividual events, Nelli Kim of the Soviet Union took the gold medal in the vault, beating Comaneci, Kim scored 19.625, to 19.600 for Comaneci. The bronze went to Steffi Kraker of East Germany, with 19.550.

Rhonda Schwandt of the United States had the highest score, a 9.90, but could not overcome her backlog from the earlier events, and finished fourth with 19,525.

The United States' second medal was won by Frederick with a nearperfect 9.95 oo the noeven bars. That gave her a winning aggregate of 19.800.

The silver medal went to Elena Mukhina of the Soviet Upion with 19.725 and the bronze to Emilia Eberle of Romania with 19.625. Comaneci took her first gold medal here in the beam event with 19,625

The silver went to Mukhina with 19.600 and the bronze to Eberle with 19,575.

Natalia Shaposhnikova, the Soviet bronze medalist in the combined and leader going into the beam event, lost her balance several times and scored only a 9.0, compared to Comaneci's 9.80. Kim and Mukhina shared the gold in the final event, the floor exercises, Kim and Mukhina scored 19.775 and Johnsoo and Eberle 19.525.

Yesterday, Soviet women gymnasts eclipsed Comancoi to sweep the three top places in the individual combined exercises at the championships. The sweep in the individual exercises followed the Soviet victory in the women's team event earlier last week.

Started at the Top

Defeat is rare for Comaneci. Io her first year in international competition, she won the European title in 1975, and had dominated the world elite ever since, winning three gold medals at the 1976 Olympic Games.

But yesterday Mukhina, 18, took the gold medal with an aggregate of 78.725 points. Kim, 20. staged a remarkable comeback from fifth place to take the silver medal with 78.575 points. The bronze medal went to their teammate, Shaposhnikova, 17, with 77,875 points. Comaneci was fourth with 77.725 and her teammate, Eberle, finished fifth with 77.300. Vera Cerna of Czechoslovakia finished sixth with 77.025 points, followed by Kraker of East Germany with 76,950. Comaneci, 16, seemed distracted and uninspired from the start. She coughed several times and fidgeted oervously with her fingers moments before leaping up on her first exercise, the uneven bars, in which she won the gold medal at the 1976 Games with a perfect score of 10. Twenty seconds into her routine, her bands missed the high har and she fell to her knees on the mat, touching off a gasp from the capacity crowd of 8,000 speciators to Strasbourg's Rhenus Hall. She gracefully climbed back on the bars and finished with a 9.25 including an automatic 0.5 penalty for falling. It was her lowest score in the four exercises. Io ber second exercise, the beam - which also brought her a perfect-10 gold medal in Montreal - she mounted with all eyes fixed expectantly on

She flipped and twisted, landing on the spruce beam with a loud thump that echoed across the hall. Although fanciful, it was an unambitious routine for which the judges awarded her 9.80 points.

The Soviet gymnasts won five scores of 9.90 and two oear-perfect 9.95s. No competitor was given the perfect 10 in any exercise.

Letter From Los Angeles

Ms. Mechanics

By Kathleen Hendrix

OS ANGELES — The lettering cuss and explain. . . Women make very good mechanics."

Gallucci found out personally L over the shop in a Gasoline Alley section of Canoga Park in the San Fernando Valley is pretrily done — Women's Garage — in beige and brown. Inside, the walls of the garage are orange on the bottom, gold stripe in the middle, cream on top. There is a row of plants along the divider that sections off the office area.

That's about it: The feminine touches fall far short of pink organ-

Whether the Women's Garage, which opened last May, is the only full service commercial garage in the United States run by women, as owner-operators Toni Gallucci and Susan Nestor are inclined to believe, or merely one of a rare few. it is, nevertheless, just a garage. They spend their days at the shop like two fairly typical mechanics.

By 8:30 one recent morning Susan Nestor was on the phone shop-ping for a choke coil for a '69 Chevy Nova and Toni Gallucci was waist deep into that same Nova fitting a valve-cover gasket into place.

Phyllis Smyles, the car's owner, stood on the side with her poodle, telling Gallucci, "My son ran my car the other day and said whoever did it was beautiful - and he's

Not waiting for a response, she turned to a stranger and smiled with satisfaction. "Since I had this car, I've never had it running so good. You know why? A woman takes care."

She'd never had a hill itemized so thoroughly, she said; she'd oever had things explained so carefully to her; she'd never had "that car idle so wonderful." She was pleased.
To which both mechanics respond with an attitude of "but of course."

Later in the day, Toni Galucci took a few minutes to sit at her grimy gray metal desk to smoke a cigarette and explain a few things.

The shop is only the beginning. They want to hire and train other women to be mechanics; they want to open a few other shops - one in the Westwood area of Los Angeles, one in Northern California; after that, maybe franchises. She made it sound like a sure thing.

"We're real revolutionary," she said of their appeal. "People seem to feel we're an alternative to what people call an automotive rip-off. We're honest. We take time to dis-that she might be a good mechanic "quite hy accident" five years ago when she had little money and a car that always needed repairs. She was a manager in a computer husi-ness and knew nothing about auto-mobiles when the car's fuel pump went out.

The $45-plus-towing estimate was out of the question. Assured by a friend that all it required was removing two hoses and two bolts, she bought a pump for $9.45 at a

Darts store. "I got under there with a little moral support from my frieod. I carefully removed those two bolts and two hoses and a couple of hours later - it should have taken 20 mioutes but I was so careful -I'd dooe it!"

And she was hooked.

Sue Nestor's moment of truth with her car was less pleasant hut it had the same effect. She had hazarded a few minor repairs on her car out of economic necessity, but "really got serious" when she and a friend discovered their car had fall-en prey to some macho pranksterism on a remote section of the Pacific Coast Highway.

"They'd taken off the coil wire.
They'd disconnected the drive belt. Basically they'd tampered enough to make it inoperative. It was clear we were supposed to go hack down to the beach and appeal to them for this information that only men have. We managed to get it going — but I felt like the all-time

No more. She went oo to get certified as a mechanic, specialized in rehuilding engines and met up with Gallucci, who had been taking courses, 100. They began teaching basic automotive mechanics in the Los Angeles area, did so for three years, then decided to open their shop. Like the courses, the shop is based oo a firm overall policy — demystifying the automobile. Especially for women. (About two-thirds of their customers are women.) They like their work, they said more than once during the day. Their customers are satisfied and they are pleasantly surprised that they're accepted by their colleagues in the area - treated like professionals, taken seriously, oo jokes or

Coaxing a Poet Into View

By Michael Keman WASHINGTON (WP) W That's the first thing about poetry: You can't tell where you'll find it.
William Meredith, the new consultant in poetry to the Library of Congress, was talking about his craft the other day. "A poem," he said (cautious in the face of such a bald question from the press), "is the operation of language with an emotional charge that can't be accounted for rationally."

The consultantship is formally for 1978-79 hut sometimes is extended for a second year. It is one of those very visible land-marks in the life of U.S. poets, the kind of accolade that can be almost embarrassing to someone as old-shoe as Meredith. ("I'm going to start believing I am oow a Major Poet," he chuckled)

There are others: the Ford and Rockefeller grants, the Loines award, the Hudson Review fellowship, the annual Poetry magazine prizes and so forth. Meredith has woo them all.

Tyrannical

He is not a radical poet. He is oot obscure. He accepts, most of the time, the discipline of rhyme and meter. Yet he loves to quote Randall Jarrell's comparison of Whitman and Tennyson, celebrating the richness of expression in Whitman's free verse in cootrast with "how much Tennyson has had to leave out" because of his tyrannical rhymes.

As Ezra Pound said, "Verse may have form as a tree has form, or as water poured into a

The second thing about poerry is that, though it is everywhere, it must be coaxed into view. Anybody can say that moonlight is poetic. But how to say it without sinking into some dreadful cliche about "silver" or "pale" or fanciful references to wan ladies?

A Meredith line:

Moonlight washes the west side of the house As clean as bone. .

Who would have thought there was so much energy in the word "washes"? Meredith, 59, flew in World War II and Kores, won the Air

Poet Meredith: "Searchlights through smoke."

Medal with Oak Leaf cluster (which he doesn't like to talk about), and only recently quit flying for pleasure. Often his view of the world comes literally from high above, as "the lakes that lie on bayous like a leopard," and sometimes he finds beauty in the spectacle of

A delicate red chart of squares, And jewelled, from which rise lazy tracers,

And the searchlights through smoke tumble up To a lovely apex on some undone

The poetry may be there, wairing to he perceived, but you have to know how to look.

Like a lot of people, Meredith played with words all through his youth, was the class poet (1940) at Princeton, worked briefly for the New York Times as copy boy and reporter, later was opera critic for the Hudson

After the war he had a year as Woodrow Wilson fellow, and taught at Princeton, the University of Hawaii and Connecticut College, where he has been established since 1955. Then there were his four years at the Bread-loaf Writers Conference in Vermoot, ootable for a speech he made deploriog the endless in-fighting and backhiting among certain colleagues.

It can be even harder to be a poet in academe than in a bomber. Exactly when, in fact, did he start putting down "poet" on forms that ask for "Occupa-

"I was serving in the Aleutians for a year in 1942," he said, "on anti-sohmarine patrol. The weather was temble and our commanding officer, being an intelligent man, didn't make us fly when there was no chance of our seeing anything, so we had lots of free time. There were things you could do: athletics, drinking, all sorts of recreation. I got really interested in reading and writing poetry. I'd been playing at it before.

"I guess the commitment came when some friends sent a manuscript of mine to Archie MacLeish."

As it happened, MacLeish was searching for oew talents. He had to pick someone for the Yale Series of Younger Poets, and in 1944 the book he picked was Meredith's "Love Letter from an Impossible Land." And he wrote a glowing introduction.

Slowly

"It made a great difference to me," commented Meredith, who has a knack for understatement. Since then he has written five other books, published an edi-tion of Shelley and a celebrated translation of Apollinaire's 'Alcools.'

He works slowly. If he completes six poems a year, he is content. He believes in luck, and in the visions that come when the ego is turned off and the mind lies quiet.

"Set down rationally," he writes, "revelations sound like hallucinations: This bush by the side of the road flared up and a voice spoke out of it - we very rational people feel foolish re-counting it. But this is what happened: A series of associations, and the words they inhabited came to me uninvited but be cause I was in a state of unselfcentered attention."

The statement comes from his intense short essay, "The Luck of It," in William Heyen's American Poets in 1976."

He hopes to "do things that are in character for me" during his stint as consultant. Prohably he will spend some time with teachers of poetry, for he is al-most as devoted to teaching as to poetry. For 10 years he ran an Upward Bound program for in-oer city youths in New York and Hartford. It is an expression of his quiet belief that just as we neglect the resources of form in poetry, we neglect the resources of the established forms of society and government

"The Union of Concerned Scientists is my cause now."

War Critics

Yet he was "one of the last to see the light" about Vietnam, and he resisted the line taken by many liberal poets because he resented the shrillness, the brick-throwing, the "misinformation and dishonesty" of some war critics that helped bring a division among Americans one qualed since the Civil War. A line about Richard Nixon:

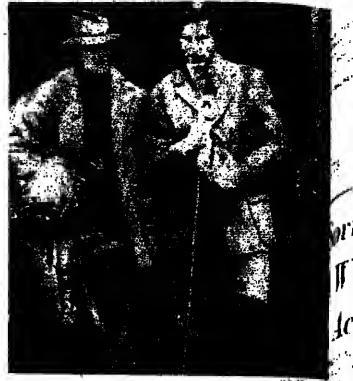

He cannot shake his unpopular conviction . That his nation has bitterly misspoken itself.

And this mordant comment about the social underpinnings of our symbol-ridden politics:

In August somebody said the VWs Must be coming off the line in

Stuttgart
With McGovern-Shriver stickers. But Nader was right: in collision With a fat American machine they're murder.
